Natalie Goldberg
“Writing Down the Bones”

Natalie Goldberg is the author of Writing Down The Bones: Freeing The Writer Within (1986), which broke open a world of creativity and started a revolution in the way writing is practiced in this country. The book has sold over one million copies and been translated into nine languages. Since then Natalie has written nine other books, including the novel Banana Rose and most recently, The Great Failure. Learn writing skills from a master - join Natalie for an extraordinary two-day hands-on writing workshop sponsored by the Sedona Arts Center. www.nataliegoldberg.com.

Natalie has a national reputation as an extraordinary teacher with students coming from around the world to attend her life-changing workshops. She has been practicing Zen meditation and teaching seminars in writing for the last twenty-five years. The Oprah Winfrey Show sent a film crew to spend the day with Natalie for a segment on spirituality that covered her writing, teaching, painting and walking meditation.
